

WORKERS' COMPENSATION CERTIFICATION

California law requires all employers to carry workers' compensation insurance, even if they have only one employee. If you are the sole owner and you have no employees, or if your business is an out of state corporation with no employees working in California, you may not be required to carry workers' compensation insurance. It is your responsibility to comply with the law. If you do not know whether you are required to carry workers' compensation insurance, find out by contacting the California Department of Industrial Relations ("DIR"). Information is also available on the DIR's website at <http://dir.ca.gov>.

Labor Code § 3700 in relevant part provides that every employer except the State shall secure the payment of compensation in one or more of the following ways:

- By being insured against liability to pay compensation by one or more insurers duly authorized to write compensation insurance in this State.
- By securing from the Director of Industrial Relations a certificate of consent to self-insure, which may be given upon furnishing proof satisfactory to the Director of Industrial Relations of the ability to self-insure and to pay any compensation that may become due to its employees.
- I understand that California Labor Code § 3700 et seq requires employers to provide workers' compensation insurance coverage for any employees of my business. I hereby warrant that this business is exempt from the California Labor Code provisions regarding workers' compensation insurance because it has no employees working in California or is a sole-owner with no employees.

I am aware of the provisions of Labor Code § 3700 which requires every employer to be insured against liability for workers' compensation or to undertake self-insurance in accordance with the provisions of that code, and I will comply with such provisions before commencing the performance of the Scope of Work of this Agreement.
